Program

Carl Chelette is a Clinical Social Worker, a graduate of University of Texas, with a Masters of Science in Social Work and has lived in Grapevine, TX for 15 years. For the past 3½ years, he has served as a Military and Family Life Consultant (MFLC) on Army and Air Force bases while providing mental health counseling to military personnel, their families, and retirees.

His program tonight is titled "The Toll of War on Today's Generation of Young Men, Women and their Children". From his experience of providing on-post mental health counseling to the military, he will describe the impact of the multiple deployments upon the service members and their families. These effects occur in their mental health, marital relationships, and upon their children. Veterans are also suffering joblessness, homelessness, and financial problems, all of which are compounded by our economic recession. Should they be treated this way?
